Mike D's marketing venture raises eyebrows

By Neil A. Ramirez Jr.

MANILA—Mike D's Marketing, a new company that aims to help businesses market their products, has raised eyebrows in the business community.

The company, which was founded by Mike D, a former executive of a major corporation, has a controversial marketing strategy.

It claims to be a "one-stop" marketing solution, offering a wide range of services, from product development to distribution.

However, some critics argue that the company's strategy is overly aggressive and may harm the interests of its clients.

Others, however, believe that the company's approach is innovative and could revolutionize the marketing industry.

The company's success will depend on its ability to deliver on its promises and build a strong reputation in the market.

As the company grows, it will be interesting to see how it handles the challenges that come with its ambitious goals.

For now, the company's marketing strategy remains a topic of debate among business leaders and consumers alike.

Only time will tell if Mike D's Marketing is a game-changer or just another marketing gimmick.

Small business summary

The company's marketing strategy is a mix of traditional and modern techniques, aiming to reach a wide audience.

However, the company's aggressive approach has led to some controversy, with critics questioning its ethics.

Despite the challenges, the company remains committed to its vision of becoming a leading marketing firm.

As the company continues to grow, it will be important for it to maintain transparency and accountability.

Only then can it truly establish itself as a trusted and effective marketing partner for businesses.

Peso regains momentum

By Doris C. Dumlao

THE PESO REGAINED MOMENTUM against the United States dollar yesterday along with other Asian currencies after the US Federal Reserve raised interest rates but hinted that its rate-increase and credit-tightening campaign may be at an end.

The peso rose by 24.5 centavos against the US dollar to close at 53.45 yesterday, against Tuesday's finish of 53.695.

The US Fed, the US central bank, yesterday raised its target federal funds rate by another 25 basis points for the 13th consecutive time to 4.25 percent, its highest level since May 2001.

But it also signaled that its series of rate increases may be at an end, soothing concerns about rising borrowing costs for companies and consumers.

The US Fed dropped the reference to monetary policy "accommodation" in its accompanying outlook statement, raising expectations that it would soon end its series of interest-rate increases.

"The Fed action was expected. Its immediate implication for the Philippines is on interest rate differentials and the possible downward effect on the domestic currency," said Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas governor Amando Tetangco Jr.

A narrowing interest rate differential usually exerts pressure on the peso to depreciate against the US dollar as it makes assets denominated in the local currency less attractive but the announcement that the US Fed would soon be done with interest rate hikes bolstered the peso yesterday.

"This does not seem to present a source of inflationary impulses at this time," Tetangco said.

He said the policy-making Monetary Board would be meeting today for its monthly policy rate-setting and would make a full assessment to include the inflation outlook, liquidity growth, external sector developments and other relevant factors.

Many currency and money market dealers believe the BSP may well decide to keep its own interest rates steady at today's meeting.

"There is not much pressure on the BSP to hike its rates," said Roland Avante, treasurer of Chinatrust Commercial Bank Phil.

Avante said the peso rebounded against the US dollar after the downward correction in the past few days because of the US Fed's latest comment on its monetary stance.

He said the peso, which is now trading at its strongest in more than two years, would likely remain resilient against the US dollar for the rest of the year because of strong inflows from overseas Filipino workers.

Yesterday, the peso opened at an intra-day low of 53.74 but gained throughout the day to hit a high of 53.44 before closing at 53.45 against the US dollar. Volume at the Philippine Dealing System stood at $344 million.

GMA returns to host visiting Korean leader

By Christine O. Avendaño and Nikko Dixon

PRESIDENT GLORIA MACAPAGAL-Arroyo and South Korean President Roh Moo-Hyun arrived late yesterday afternoon from Kuala Lumpur where they attended the 11th summit of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations and an expanded meeting of Asean leaders and their counterparts from six trading partners in the region.

Roh and his wife, who arrived at the Ninoy Aquino International Airport aboard a chartered Asiana Airlines flight an hour ahead of Ms Arroyo, are on a two-day state visit to the Philippines. They were met by Vice President Noli de Castro and South Korean Ambassador to the Philippines Hong Jung Gi.

The Korean Times website reported that Roh's Manila visit was part of his "summit diplomacy" that would focus on economic cooperation in the region and broaden South Korea's ties with Malaysia and the Philippines.

The South Korean President will be in Manila until noon tomorrow.

The first-ever East Asian Summit (EAS) brought together the leaders of the 10-member Asean plus China, South Korea, Japan, New Zealand, Australia and India.

Not much had been expected by diplomatic observers from the meeting, given the exclusion of the United States and disparate interests of the participating countries.

Nonetheless, Ms Arroyo thought it was a milestone.

"I see value in the holding of the EAS annually, at least in the formative stages of the EAS, to allow us to maximize the momentum generated by the first meeting," Ms Arroyo told the Kuala Lumpur gathering yesterday.

Saying Manila looked forward to continue this "very useful exercise," the President invited the leaders to come to the Philippines next year for the second EAS, which will coincide with the 12th Asean summit which the Philippines is hosting in December next year in Cebu.

The President said there had been much speculation "on what the EAS should be and what it would accomplish."

"Yet we cannot overlook the fact that the 16 people sitting around the table collectively account for 30 percent of world trade, some 22 percent of global GDP and about one half of the world's population," President Arroyo said.

The President said there was "real potential to pull our political will together and address issues of strategic importance to the East Asian region."

She then made a pitch for energy security for the region, a proposal that she had been pushing for repeatedly at the Asean summit here. She asked them to agree to collectively develop alternative and indigenous energy sources that are available in East Asia and to do it on a large scale.

Meanwhile, Russian President Vladimir Putin told Ms Arroyo he wanted to visit the Philippines and was looking forward to the next EAS. The two leaders had a meeting on the sidelines of the Asean summit.

Ms Arroyo said she told Putin that the Philippines would sponsor the entry of Russia into the EAS and that she had obtained "firm commitments" from other EAS countries on the matter.

European probe supports claims of CIA prison flights

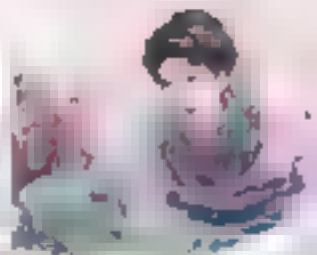

PARIS — European Union investigators have found evidence that the United States government used a network of secret detention facilities and flights to transport prisoners to countries where they could be tortured, according to a report released Tuesday.

The report, which was part of a larger investigation into the CIA's activities in the Middle East, found that the United States had a "system of secret detention facilities" in several countries, including Egypt, Jordan, and Syria. The report also found that the United States had "a network of flights" that were used to transport prisoners to these facilities.

The report was released by the European Union's Human Rights and Democracy Report, which is a biennial report that provides information on human rights and democracy in various countries. ## Lebanon ministers win anti-Syria press campaign

Lebanon's Prime Minister, Fouad Siniora, has won a significant victory in a press campaign against Syria, as he has managed to convince the international community that the Syrian regime is the main obstacle to peace in the region. Siniora's efforts have been rewarded with a series of international endorsements, including a strong statement from the United States and a similar one from the European Union. The Lebanese government has also managed to secure a number of key international positions, including a seat on the UN Security Council, which will allow it to play a more active role in the region's affairs. Siniora's victory is a testament to his diplomatic skills and the support of the Lebanese people, who have been united in their opposition to the Syrian regime.

TO THE EDITOR: I was recently invited to a presentation by a local business. The presentation was very informative and well-organized. The speaker, who was a well-known expert in the field, provided a detailed overview of the current state of the industry and the challenges it faces. Figure 1 consists of nine scatter plots arranged in a 3x3 grid. Each plot shows the relationship between the number of children (x-axis) and the number of parents (y-axis). The top row shows the relationship for the number of children (0 to 10) and the number of parents (0 to 10). The middle row shows the relationship for the number of children (0 to 10) and the number of parents (0 to 10). The bottom row shows the relationship for the number of children (0 to 10) and the number of parents (0 to 10). Each plot has a title and axes labeled 'Number of children' and 'Number of parents'.

The drawing is a technical illustration of a mechanical assembly, possibly a pump or engine component. It features a main assembly view at the top, showing a cylindrical body with various internal and external features. Below this are several detailed views of individual components, each labeled with letters and numbers. The components include a central shaft or piston rod, a connecting rod, a crankshaft, and various bearings and seals. The drawing is oriented vertically, with the main assembly view at the top and the detailed views below it. The labels are in a mix of uppercase and lowercase letters, and some numbers are present. The drawing is a black and white line drawing, typical of technical manuals.

Naia-3 completion work seen to start in Q1

By Corina S. Balle

MANILA, Dec. 6 (PNA) — The Naia-3 project, a major infrastructure development in the Philippines, is expected to start completion work in the first quarter of 2008, according to a source familiar with the project.

Japanese contractor gets initial payment of $10M

The Japanese contractor, which has been awarded the contract for the Naia-3 project, is expected to receive an initial payment of $10 million from the Philippine government. The payment is part of a larger contract worth $100 million.

The Naia-3 project is a major infrastructure development in the Philippines, and is expected to be completed by the end of 2008. The project will involve the construction of a new airport terminal, as well as the expansion of existing facilities.

1978, 1979). Studies of the effects of stress on the reproductive system have been limited. Some studies have shown that stress can affect the reproductive system, but the results are often contradictory. Some studies have shown that stress can lead to a decrease in reproductive function, while others have shown that stress can lead to an increase in reproductive function.

WHILE A FISHY TASTE DOES NOT appeal to everyone, the health benefits of seafood are well known. It is a source of protein, omega-3 fatty acids, and other nutrients that are good for the heart and brain. In fact, many studies have shown that people who eat fish regularly have a lower risk of heart disease and other chronic conditions.

There are many different types of fish, and each has its own unique flavor and texture. Some are fatty, like salmon and tuna, while others are lean, like cod and tilapia. The way you cook the fish can also make a big difference in its taste and health benefits. For example, grilling or broiling fish can help to preserve its natural oils, while frying can add extra fat and calories.

The versatile fish
Fish is a versatile ingredient that can be used in a variety of ways. It can be grilled, baked, fried, or even used in soups and stews. The key is to choose a high-quality fish and cook it properly to get the most out of it.
